The Barber Steamship Company sent in a check for $1,500. Accompanying the check was a letter which stated that the company "recognized the Salvation Army among the most potent of the agencies for relief, now accomplishing real war work among our troops."

In connection with this there is an interesting story. In the company there is an official who eighteen months ago was rescued from the gutter by Adjt. Crosby.

Ship Captain Saved.

This official was formerly a ship's cap-tain, earning $250 a month. He had served the Barber company well in this capacity until he began to drink. The responsibility of his occupation neces-sitated his immediate discharge and having lost his position he became even more addicted to drink. He was found wandering almiessiy on the Bowery by Adjt. Croeby, who put him to work in the Salvation Army Building.

When he had been there a number of months she went to the officials of the steamship company and asked that the former captain be reinstated. Finally the request was granted, and eighteen months ago he was taken into the offices in a clerical position. To-day he is earning $800 a month.

Testifying to the work that the Salvation Army is doing in France, a letter was sent to headquarters by Guy Emerson, publicity director of the Liberty Loan Committee. This letter said in "I thought you might be interested to results you might be interested to know that in receiving the fifty Pershing veterans here in New York last week I heard a great many fine things from them with regard to the work of the Salvation Army in France. Appreciated by Soldiers. "The men seemed to feel that the rep-resentatives of the Salvation Army in Europe were particularly useful be-cause they went out among the men even into the front line trenches and gave them hot drinks and a kind of whole hearted encouragement which made their days and nights of trial much easier. "I hope your present campaign may be successful in order that the work which has been so splendidly started may be carried on without interruption."

Wisconsin's loyalty pledge to the Union, United States Senator Irvine I. Lenroot, said a few downright things before the National Security League at the Metropolitan Opera House last night about the fighting stick-to-itiveness of the U. S. A., the necessity of abolishing the whole Hohensollern crew before there can be any talk of peace and the purpose of the people to demand that hereafter there shall be honest and effi-cient expenditure of the public's money

The man from Wisconsin did not mince words in discussing any of these cardinal topics. He said that if Germany wins in Europe, beats France and Italy and cripples England the United States will keep on Schiller on land and

Out in Wisconsin, some people used to sniff at Lenroot's patriotism, saying that before we went into the war he seemed none too keen about interfering with German alms; but no one who heard his speech before 4,000 persons last night had a doubt as to the stuff he is made of. It was interesting not only as signifying the Senator's purpose to work and talk for war to the finish, no matter what the odds may be, but as indicative of the determination of the Republican party in Congress to fight administrative incompetency and to de-mand that the people shall know the

The two Republican statesmen, the elder and the younger, fixed and held the attention of the thousands. Mr. Root began by asking the ques-tion: "Is the Government of the United States too weak to maintain itself in the presence of this great emergency?"

That is the question that must be answered, he went on, if the men in the trenches are properly to be supported. He thought it was a question that must be answered with the determination that will outlast all discouragement, all

Funeral services will be conducted at o'clock this afternoon at the Funeral our command until German autocracy is overthrown, for so long as that survives there can be no peace. Any treaty with the present Government of Germany would not be peace, but only a truce, a truce to be broken at the will of the Kaiser, another scrap of paper to be torn up whenever it suited his purpose.

W. W. SHARPE.

"The best service America can render the world to-day is to resolve unalterably that there shall be no negotiated peace with the present Government of Germany; that before we will offer or consider any terms of peace we must have assurances that the German Government will be reformed; that at the least there shall be such a parliamentary system as England enjoys. We should make a plan that we will not consider any terms of peace with the Kaiser, who has violated every law, human and divine.
